I believe the audio is saying that human inferences can be interpreted in many different ways. Some people think when certain situations happen to them that it is magical or a coincidence but when you break it down and look at the big picture you figure out that it is not that big of a deal. Also that people can twist the evidence in a story making it slippery evidence. They can leave out important parts to make the story seem more coincidental.

Something that happened that seemed very unusual to me is when my sister gave birth to her second daughter on my 18th birthday. She was supposed to have her baby a week later but when she went into her checkup the morning of my birthday and called my mom and told her that they were admitting her because she was going to have to baby. This seemed very odd to me and rare for her to be having her baby on my birthday but I was so excited!

When examining my story compared to what I learned from the audio I realize that it isn’t as bizarre as I thought that my niece was born on my birthday. Like the audio said in reference to blade of grass, I have to take myself out of the picture and when I look at the big idea it isn’t that crazy. My sister was going to go into labor within the next week and everyone knows that the due date of a baby is set in stone and that the baby can come whenever at 34-36 weeks.